Excerpt from General Grant: Memorial Address Every step of this man s long march for the rescue of the Republic is worth most careful study. But in the brief time proper for this service only a few things maybe recalled and relived. Paducah, his first engage ment against the Rebellion, showed the presence of the great General as certainly as did Mission Ridge. Quickly done, even before authority reached him from Fremont, it Opened the Ohio river and quieted the talk about neutrality in Kentucky, and furnished Grant s first important public document, in which be distinguished between acts and ideas, soldiers and citizens. Donelson, which Grant called our first clear victory, marked a new era in the issue between the North and the South. It transformed the strife from a parade into a war. It demonstrated the ability of raw Western vol unteers to endure and win, under any circumstances, when properly led. It sent North thousands of prisoners, more than had ever been taken at once in any field since the surrender of Ulm to Bonaparte. It broke the strategical line of defense of the sacred soil of the South. Immediately Bowling Green was abandoned. Nashville surrendered without a blow. Impregnable Columbus, which held the Mississippi and threatened the Ohio, was deserted, Missouri was secured, Kentucky was practically freed from invaders, and Tennessee was restored to the Union. Well might this bat tle, where we learned about unconditional surrender, give new spirit to the army and the country, and turn all eyes upon the silent soldier whose form and face will never be forgotten. Vicksburg was called by Jefferson Davis the Gibraltar of America. It is situated on a plateau two...
